Mobster: Bulger 'broke my heart'

Bulger trial. Confessed killer John Martorano testified about murder and corruption when he took the stand against his old pal "Whitey" yesterday.

A former mobster who confessed to killing 20 people, some of them innocent victims, took the witness stand yesterday and talked about his own heartache — when he learned that his onetime best friend and accused mob leader James "Whitey" Bulger was a federal informant.

Confessed killer John Martorano said that he considered Bulger one of his best friends. Martorano helped Bulger run the Winter Hill Gang, made Bulger a godfather to his child and even named his son James.

Martorano, the 72-year-old former Winter Hill Gang member, took the stand and testified against his former friend, because he said Bulger had betrayed their loyalty.

"They were my partners in crime. They were my best friends. They were my children's godfathers," Martorano said of Bulger and another gang associate Stephen Flemmi. "After I heard they were informants, it sort of broke my heart. But they broke all the trust that we had, all the loyalties. I was beside myself for it."

Despite confessing to 20 murders, Martorano was sentenced to 14 years in jail after being convicted of racketeering and other crimes. He signed a plea deal with prosecutors in exchange for his testimony against his former mob pals.

The fourth day of the Bulger trial took an extremely dark turn when Martorano took the stand. He provided chilling details of the murders for which Bulger is currently on trial.

Martorano recounted many of his murders, including the time in 1974 when he shot fellow Winter Hill Gang member James Sousa. The gang members were worried Sousa was going to turn on them after he was arrested, so they decided to kill him, Martorano said. They invited him to a Somerville garage by telling him they wanted to give him money for a lawyer. Instead Martorano shot him.

"The blood went everywhere," said Martorano, who later added that Bulger helped clean up.

Bulger, who wore a collared shirt, glanced at Martorano as he walked to the witness stand, but the two didn't say anything or make any motions.

How Martorano makes his money

Martorano said during his testimony yesterday that he made money through various means.

He said that while in prison, after agreeing to plead guilty, he was paid $6,000 by the Drug Enforcement Agency for commissary items like soap and toothpaste. Upon release he was paid another $20,000.

The former mobster said he sold his life rights for $250,000 to a movie company that has yet to make a film based on them. If it's made, he would also be able to collect royalties.

For the most part, Martorano said that he currently lives on Social Security.

Bus-ted no more: T to improve key bus routes

Summer makeover.
The MBTA's busiest buses will get upgrades by the end of August.

By the end of the summer, nearly half of all Boston bus passengers can expect faster, more reliable service on the MBTA's busiest routes.

Construction begins this week on 15 key routes, which according to T officials serve 885 bus stops in eight communities, and carry roughly 40 percent of total bus passengers.

Bus stops will be consolidated to reduce the number of stops by 25 percent, which T officials said will reduce trip times by an average of 13 percent. Stops will also be made handicap accessible and will get new amenities, like shelters, benches, trash barrels and signage.

New "Park and Pedal" bike cages will be installed at Alewife and Beverly garages in July.

Wollaston, Back Bay, Dudley and Wonderland will get the cages in August.

The project is being funded by a $10 million grant through the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act.

The routes to get improvements are: 1, 15, 22, 23, 28, 32, 39, 57, 66, 71, 73, 77, 111, 116 and 117.

Bruins fans, here's how to spot the fake merchandise

Sketchy stuff. Experts say counterfeiters are preying on the playoff excitement.

Imitation may be the most sincere form of flattery, but as far as counterfeiters are concerned, selling imitation duds means dirty dollars.

Playoff season is a perfect time for knockoff artists to sell fake wares to sports fans, but the cheap goods come with a price.

Counterfeit merchandise is flimsy, and often falls apart or fades within weeks, not to mention fuels an illegal activity that sucks money from legitimate brands.

So what can be faked?

"You name it. Anything from shirts to top-end Bruins sweaters, hats, trinkets. If it will sell, there is somebody in the world trying to counterfeit it," said Tom Taylor, a counterfeiting expert with OpSec Security in Copley, which handles anti-counterfeiting for the NHL.

Taylor said sports fans can avoid knockoffs by looking closely at garment tags and trinket stickers.

Legit NHL garment tags have the league's logo, and if there are patches, they should be raised. Other bobbles should have individually serialized stickers. Sketchy salesmen often lurk in the TD Garden parking lot, and sell merch from their cars, so avoid them. And, if the price is too good to be true, it is probably an imposter.

Mob mystery. FBI digs up field near Detroit in new search for Hoffa's body

The latest search for former Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa, who disappeared in 1975 in what law enforcement officials believe might have been an organized crime hit, brought investigators yesterday to an overgrown vacant field in suburban Detroit.

A bulldozer drove onto the property and video shot from a helicopter by Detroit television station WDIV showed FBI agents with shovels digging at the ground in a bid to find the remains of the union leader, whose dramatic life story inspired the 1992 movie "Hoffa," starring Jack Nicholson.

FBI special agent Robert Foley confirmed the search on a property in Oakland Township about 45 miles north of Detroit, but declined to provide further details. REUTERS

Leaker says he cannot get a fair trial in US system

Case. The Justice Department has opened a criminal investigation into Snowden's actions.

The former National Security Agency contractor who revealed the government's top-secret phone and Internet surveillance programs said in an online forum yesterday that he did not expect to get a fair trial in the United States.

In a question-and-answer session with readers on the website of Britain's Guardian newspaper, Snowden said his disappointment with President Barack Obama helped spur his decision to reveal the monitoring of Americans' phone and Internet data kept by big companies such as Google and Facebook.

"The U.S. government, just as they did with other whistleblowers, immediately and predictably destroyed any possibility of a fair trial at home, openly declaring me guilty of treason and that the disclosure of secret, criminal and even unconstitutional acts is an unforgivable crime. That's not justice," he told the online forum.

The revelations by Snowden have led to a criminal investigation, and U.S. officials promised last week to hold Snowden accountable for leaking details of the surveillance to the Guardian and the Washington Post.

The resulting controversy has ignited a renewed debate about the proper balance between privacy rights and national security, and Snowden has been called both a traitor and a hero for his actions.

Former Vice President Dick Cheney was the latest to call Snowden a traitor, but Snowden called that a badge of honor. REUTERS

Supreme Court invalidates Ariz. voter registration law

Ruling. Democrats say the measures are intended to make it difficult for certain voters to cast ballots.

The Supreme Court struck down an Arizona law that required people registering to vote in federal elections to show proof of citizenship, a victory for activists who say it discouraged Native Americans and Latinos from voting.

The state law was strongly opposed by the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund and Indian tribes. They said it deterred legal voters who did not have the required paperwork from registering to vote.

Nina Perales, vice president of litigation at MALDEF, said the ruling "sends a strong message that states cannot block their citizens from registering to vote by superimposing burdensome paperwork requirements on top of federal law."

The ruling will affect three other states – Georgia, Alabama and Kansas – that have similar laws, and prevent others that may have wanted to follow suit from enacting legislation along the same lines.

While issuing its ruling, the court made clear that Arizona could still have other ways to assert its argument that it should be allowed to ask for proof of citizenship. That would be the subject of separate litigation, it wrote. REUTERS

Vote

In a 7-2 vote, the court said the voter registration provision of the 2004 state law, known as Proposition 200, was trumped by a federal law, the 1993 National Voter Registration Act.

Federal law requires prospective voters to provide one of several possible forms of identification, such as a driver's license or a passport, but no proof of citizenship is needed. Would-be voters simply sign a statement saying they are citizens. / GETTY IMAGES

G8. Putin, Obama face off over Syria; rebels get Saudi missiles

Rebels fought to halt an advance by President Bashar al-Assad's forces into northern Syria yesterday while President Barack Obama faced a showdown with Russia's Vladimir Putin over Obama's decision to arm the insurgents.

New evidence emerged of escalating foreign support for the rebels, with a Gulf source telling Reuters that Saudi Arabia had equipped fighters for the first time with shoulder-fired anti-aircraft missiles, their most urgent request. Rebels said Riyadh had also sent them anti-tank missiles. European nations backing the rebels would "pay the price" if they joined those sending weapons to Syria, Assad told a newspaper. REUTERS

CULTURE

Twitter feed

We check in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

Today, Amanda Bynes is planning to tweet less, Roseanne Barr isn't feeling too safe, Ricki Lake is catching up on TV and Lena Dunham is trying to keep up with current events.

@AmandaBynes: Quality Over Quantity

@TheRealRoseanne: just experienced my fourth earthquake in six weeks-omg

@RickiLake: I know I'm a little late, but Downton Abbey is soooooo good.

@lenadunham: Can someone tell me whether we're supposed to be offended by Johnny Depp's portrayal of Tonto or not? Must know for dinner parties/twitter.

Sharon and Ozzy: What divorce?

Despite rampant rumors that Ozzy and Sharon Osbourne are divorcing, the two looked very cozy on Sunday night at the 40th annual Daytime Emmy Awards in Beverly Hills, Calif.

Allegations have swirled since April that the long-married pair are living separately, with Ozzy in a rented Beverly Hills mansion and Sharon at the Beverly Hills Hotel. "They are living at different addresses and not spending any time together," a source told the Sun. And it was Ozzy who says that the separation is due to his drug use. "For the last year and a half I have been drinking and taking drugs," Ozzy wrote on his Facebook page in April. "I was in a very dark place and was an a—hole to the people I love most, my family. However, I am happy to say that I am now 44 days sober. Just to set the record straight, Sharon and I are not divorcing. I'm just trying to be a better person."

And now look at them on a date night at the Emmys. All together now: "Awwww!"

Nigella Lawson: Choking or a 'playful tiff'?

Police are investigating an apparent incident between celebrity chef Nigella Lawson and her husband, advertising executive Charles Saatchi, during which he reportedly grabbed her throat at a London restaurant, according to the Mirror. Witnesses say Lawson left the lunch in tears. "Officers from the Community Safety Unit in Westminster are aware [of the incident]," a police spokesperson says. But Saatchi insists it was just a "playful tiff," telling the Evening Standard, "We were sitting outside a restaurant having an intense debate about the children, and I held Nigella's neck repeatedly while attempting to emphasize my point."

I don't know. I would hope that if most women's' husbands "held [their] neck repeatedly" to emphasize a point, they'd leave him. Actually, I would hope they would kick them in their gonads first and then leave them. That's the best outcome.

Drake abstains from sex?

Despite his looks, talent, sex appeal, tons of cash and being known via just one name — a la Cher — Drake (Aubrey Drake Graham) isn't giving up for just any old hussy who comes along.

"You know the way fighters don't f— before the fight? Sometimes I feel like I'm so focused on training my body and getting my mind right to create this album that sex isn't one of my main priorities," the rapper tells GQ in the July issue about his forthcoming album "Nothing Was The Same." "If someone is around that I know and trust, I'm down. But I'm not going to end up with some stranger at this party."

Fascinating. So that several-year dry spell I hit was totally because I was focused on my career? Nice.

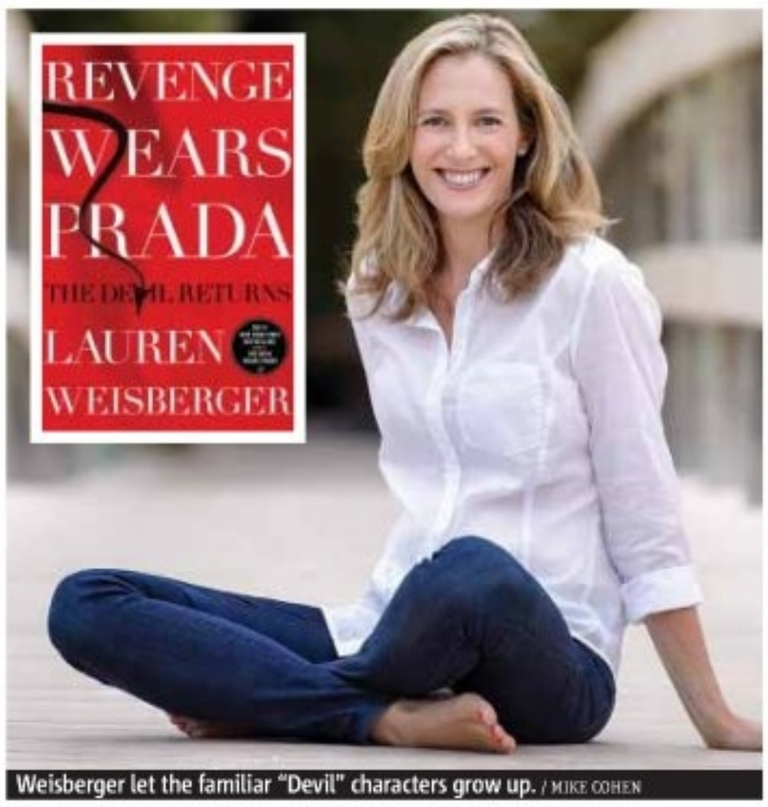
Pitt will be talking about Jolie's chest for the foreseeable future

Brad Pitt says Angelina Jolie is recovering from her voluntary double mastectomy and that it's "business as usual" following the treatment. "Her focus now is that all people have access to testing. If you do your research, it doesn't have to be scary — it can be an empowering thing," Pitt tells "Good Morning America" while promoting "World War Z," his latest film. "It's business as usual, she's doing great. When she wrote [her New York Times essay], we had already come out the other end."

So much has changed, but one 'Devil' remains

Fiction. A familiar Prada-clad character returns, 10 years later.



Weisberger let the familiar "Devil" characters grow up. / MIKE COHEN

The devil is back.

And she's still wearing Prada.

Ten years after "The Devil Wears Prada," the main character, Andy, is back for a sequel, "Revenge Wears Prada." Author Lauren Weisberger kicked off the launch this month, complete with pink drinks, champagne and plenty of the red- and white-covered books.

Metro spoke with Weisberger at the Gilt City launch party. She said that after surveying a decade of changes herself, she wanted to explore what Andy's life would be like 10 years on.

In the book, Andy — engaged and now helming her own magazine — encounters fresh challenges of her own right off the bat, while preparing to walk down the aisle. One of those challenges? Well, we'll let you guess, but it includes a familiar face.

How did you decide to bring back Andy for a new book?

So much happens in all of our lives in 10 years. I just got really curious about what would be going on with Andy and Emily and the whole crew. … I thought it would be really fun to not just check in with them and pick up their story 10 years later, but to create a whole 10-year backstory.

How was writing this book different than your other novels, where you started fresh with characters?

It's great, and it's fun to sit down with an empty screen, and you can just start from scratch. For me, the challenge came in wanting to stay true to them, wanting to keep them the same people that the readers recognized and connected with the first time, but also letting them grow up and face their own obstacles.

What will Andy face in this new book that she wouldn't have faced 10 years ago?

Ten years ago, she was wide-eyed, fresh-faced, straight out of college, super naive. … [Now] she's founded this magazine, and she's much more confident, much more sure. … She's a proper grown-up.

Get fit at these getaways

On the go. From Pilates and yoga to triathlon training, work up a sweat while you get away.

Sure, you would give anything to be reclined on a beach chair, sand on your toes and a drink in your hand. But three days into a vacation, doesn't the margarita-and-taco diet start to take its toll on your energy level? If the answer is yes, read on for some fitness-focused vacations, where that umbrella-adorned drink will taste even better when you know you worked for it, just a little bit.

Blue Osa

Costa Rica offers gorgeous rainforest and ocean views to ease a tough workout, whether you're trying deep yoga bends or doing lunges on the sand. Take things a step past a walk on the beach at Blue Osa Yoga Retreat and Spa (www.blueosa.com), opened by two New Yorkers who stumbled across the Osa Peninsula property while hosting a yoga retreat in 2007. Their motto is "More than a Vacation, It's a Way of Life," and that way of life pairs you with a private instructor for seven days in the yoga retreat package, making sure you're amping up strength and stability alongside resting and relaxing. Blue Osa also hosts an annual training for yoga teachers, and every day a morning class is available for all guests.

BodyHoliday

At St. Lucia's BodyHoliday (www.thebodyholiday.com), they promise that if you give them your body, they'll give you back your mind. Although poolside relaxing is perfectly acceptable, a packed roster of available activities from cycling to aerobics encourages an active vacation. So does a recently renovated wellness center, which overlooks St. Lucia's royal blue waters. In June, the resort has a dance-themed workout special, Jive June, and bring the kids from June 30 through Sept. 1, when the Well-Fit Families special welcomes children 12 and older for a weeklong, boot-camp-style workout. In November, St. Lucia hosts its annual wellness retreat.

Horoscope

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. Anyone who teams up with you to handle a bold, imaginative endeavor will be considered lucky. You'll provide the needed know-how for success.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. The welfare of others is likely to be your prime concern. However, even though this is a noble effort, you'll derive some fringe benefits from your selflessness.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. You're presently in a cycle where you could realize more than a few hopes and desires. However, nothing will be simply handed to you; you'll have to work hard for your rewards.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Who you know and what you know will prove of immeasurable help in a complicated undertaking. You'll need to utilize both.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. You have a knack for improving upon the ideas of others. You should have ample raw material to draw from at present, and you'll be able make some impressive achievements.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. Joint ventures look to be especially promising. You'll be in a position to successfully help further something initiated by another, and you'll come out ahead in the process.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Friends will find you to be refreshingly honest. Because you'll compliment only those who deserve praise, what you say will have impact.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan 20. You're in a very good achievement cycle, so don't waste your valuable time on insignificant objectives. Go after only the biggest game.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb 18. That wheel of fortune seems to be spinning in your direction. What it can do for you first needs to be recognized and then taken advantage of, so be alert.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Some fortunate developments might occur that won't be orchestrated by you, yet will produce advantages as if you had personally designed them.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. If you have something that needs to be worked out, avoid discussing it with the multitude, which would only prove confusing. Select a confidant who keeps his or her head on straight.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Instead of asking someone to take care of an issue that could affect your security, do it yourself. You'll handle things better on your own.

Get Snowden

Edward Snowden's lame explanation as to why he leaked classified information to our enemies is a simple "snow job." He should be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. Whether he gets jail time or the death sentence for leaking sensitive, classified top secrets depends on how well our military laws are put forth in prosecuting Snowden and others willing to sell this great nation down the river for their twisted gratification. Some think Snowden is a hero. Heroes don't compromise U.S. security. I agree with Rep. Peter King, chairman of Homeland Security. Snowden has done significant damage and harm to the security and safety of America.

What's faith ever done for anyone, anyway?

Re: 'Show a little effing respect' (Metro, June 14-16) I'm writing this in response to letter writer Kim Santoro. People are so easily offended nowadays. You can't mention anything without someone crying and acting all sensitive.

To claim that Jesus is a deity is a matter of opinion. The fact that this is put on such a high pedestal is beyond me. People fighting over religion and these so-called gods is ridiculous.

To quote The Beatles, "All you need is love" — and with that, some compassion and understanding. The root cause of most wars is religion, so tell me, what good is it?

2013 STANLEY CUP FINAL – BOSTON vs. CHICAGO

Stormin' Bruins clobber Chicago

NHL playoffs. The Bruins took a 2-1 series lead in the Cup Final last night thanks to an impressive 2-0 victory.

The first two games of the Stanley Cup Final in Chicago were rather even, both requiring overtime to determine winners. The Bruins and the Blackhawks scored five goals apiece. Both teams won one game.

The series shifted to Boston and a decidedly one-sided affair broke out, as the Bruins controlled matters from start to finish in a 2-0 victory last night at TD Garden.

Daniel Paille scored for the second straight game and helped create an opportunity for another goal and Tuukka Rask continued to frustrate the Blackhawks with 27 saves as the B's grabbed a 2-1 advantage in the best-of-seven series. Game 4 is tomorrow night at TD Garden (8 p.m., NBC).

The Bruins outshot (35-28), outhit (31-25) and outhustled Chicago. They ran their penalty kill streak to 27, even producing some nice shorthanded scoring opportunities along the way. And led by Patrice Bergeron (24-4 on faceoffs), Boston won possession on 71 percent of puck drops, all part of a complete effort that tilts the series toward the Black and Gold.

Unlike Game 2, when they limped out of the locker room as if their feet had been dipped in quick-dry cement, the Bruins started strong. Alas, there was nothing to show for it until that revamped third line, led by Paille, again provided the scoring punch early in the second.

Paille, who had an assist and scored the game-winner in overtime Saturday night, first kept the puck in the zone and then set up Tyler Seguin for a pretty good chance that bounded back toward Paille, who was able to pot it. With the B's on a power play later in the period, Paille's hustle drew a tripping penalty that led to a 5-on-3 situation.

Although Paille was off the ice after the call and although Chicago technically killed off the two-man advantage, its fourth skater was just coming back onto the ice when Jaromir Jagr fired a beautiful pass to Bergeron, who slammed it past Corey Crawford to make it 2-0 with 5:55 left in the second.

Game 3

For the first time this series, one team had the decided advantage as the Bruins controlled play throughout.

- After the first period, the B's had established a 17-5 faceoff advantage.
- The Bruins recorded 17 blocks compared to the Blackhawks' seven.
- Boston outshot Chicago, 35-28, and outhit the 'Hawks, 31-25.

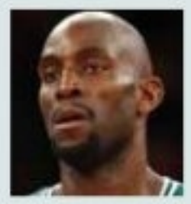
Summer blockbuster

Celtics, Clippers closing in on monster swap

Neither Clippers vice president of basketball operations Gary Sacks nor Celtics president Danny Ainge would budge as the sun set on the East Coast last night.



Los Angeles and Boston had reportedly been negotiating all day on a deal that would have had head coach Doc Rivers and future Hall of Famer Kevin Garnett heading West in exchange for promising center DeAndre Jordan, draft picks, potential salary cap relief and/or guard Eric Bledsoe.

As of early last night, a source close to the negotiations told CSNNE.com that the two sides were "still at it" in terms of hashing out a deal.

Since the trade rumors heated up this past Saturday afternoon, several snags have occurred in finalizing any deal including the Clippers not wanting to part with Bledsoe and the Celtics wanting to dump the contracts of either Jason Terry or Courtney Lee on Los Angeles. Terry is due $11 million in salary over the next two years and Lee is due $14.4 million over the next three years. To match either of those salaries, the Clippers would likely ship small forward Caron Butler to Boston. Butler's contract expires after next season. MATT BURKE
